

A NATURAL HISTORY
IN 3 INCOMPLETE PARTS

MAGGIE O'SULLIVAN

"O'Sullivan gives every indication of wanting to burn down the doors of perception with a surplus of signifiers. She atomises language, such that even where vestiges of conventional syntax are present they are undermined by the punctuation... Mostly, however, the structuring principle isn't syntax, rather the libidinal energy that attracts words to each other. This is a poet head over heels in love with words; she raids the specialised vocabularies of botany and entomology, the dictionary, her own unconscious, in search of material, matter to work with: words not ideas. The visual equivalent is collage, a method which she makes skilful use of in her parallel work as an artist".

(Ken Edwards, City Limits)

MAGGIE O'SULLIVAN was born 20th July 1951 in Lincoln of southern Irish parents. Poet and Visual Artist & is employed with BBC-TV, London.
